Master of Social Work

An Erikson MSW uniquely prepares you to serve a wide range of people in a variety of settings by giving you a deep understanding of how early experiences impact people across their entire lifespan. Erikson students learn how critical factors like brain development, the effects of trauma, and relationship-based learning factor into problems faced by youth, families, and communities. As critical thinkers, graduates can become an agent for change and advocate for social justice.

This degree program requires two years of field experience—completing at least a total of 900 hours supervised field work. With over 100 field placements in Chicago area, Erikson Institute can help you earn relevant experience.

Introducing Our Online MSW

Balance your MSW with your life by taking classes part-time through our 100% online MSW. Students can enroll in our Children, Adolescents, and Adults concentration, and our Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health concentration.

Career Opportunities

Graduates of our Master of Social Work can consider careers such as: trauma-informed crisis counselor, individual and group therapist with children and families, social service administrator, policy advocate, mental health consultant, and child welfare specialist.

Advanced Standing

Already have a Bachelor's in Social Work? If so, you may utilize our Advanced Standing option for both Campus and Online programs. Applicants who received a BSW within six years of application may waive up to 25 credit hours of the program. See www.erikson.edu/advancedstanding for more details.

Why Erikson?

- One of the first developmentally informed social work programs.
- We offer flexibility with a range of full- and part-time program lengths.
- Access to dedicated faculty, academic writing support, library, career services and student services.

We've hired numerous Erikson graduates. What I love about Erikson is the whole notion about focusing on child development. It doesn't matter if you are working with a family with children or working with adults—those first few years of life are crucial in everyone's development."
